The Tariff Bill Sent From White House to State Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The new tariff bill was sent from the White House to the state department at 3:30 a. m., where it will be carefully scanned and then sent to the government printing office and printed in the form of an act. How the bill became an act is shown on the official records by the following statement by the president:

"Note 2.—The following named bill, having been presented to the president on the 15th inst., and not having been returned by him to the house of congress in which it originated within the time prescribed by the constitution of the United States, has become a law without his approval:

"H. B. No. 4264, an act to reduce taxation; to provide revenue for the government and for other purposes."

The work of putting the new tariff bill into effect now devolves on the collectors of customs of the various ports and internal revenue officers, and until they meet difficulties in its administration, little will remain to be done by the treasury department, the circulars of yesterday having given instructions on the very few points requiring immediate attention.

The treasury department has not yet received reports showing the rush of the last day to get whiskey tax paid in advance of the increase of the rate. Tuesday is always an off day as respects reports of internal revenue receipts, and today's statement was simply a nominal one, the treasury statement of internal revenue receipts being only $351,472.

Two Emporia Canvassers for Populist Literature Wanted.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

A Leavenworth Woman Kicked by Her Husband Fatally.

EMPORIA, Aug. 28.—On last Friday morning a man who bears the euphonious title of J. S. Crank and has been soliciting subscriptions for the Tidings, hired a livery team of W. J. McAfee of this city to take a two-day trip in the northern part of the county. He left the city with the buggy loaded down with reform literature and sample copies of the Tidings, accompanied by a partner in the scheme, named Stevens.

As the team did not return on Saturday evening as was expected, Mr. McAfee feared that something was wrong, and yesterday morning, accompanied by a deputy sheriff, started out on a tour of investigation. The alleged reformers were traced to Allen where they had made a date to address the citizens on Saturday evening, upon the "Issues of the Day."

At Allen the team was found at French's barn. The reform agitators had left it as security for $2, which they borrowed from Mr. French to pay their railroad fare to Osaage City, where they were going to make political speeches.

A letter came to Mr. McAfee this morning from "Crank" saying that the team was at Allen, and that whenever he could secure a "stake" he would send in money to pay the bill.

Deputy Sheriff O'Connor went to Osaage City with a warrant for the arrest of the two politicians, but they were not there. The warrant was got out by Major Paul, who has lost faith in the two solicitors.

An Osaage liveryman had hired them a team which they left at a Scranton barn, sending the owner a note telling where to find his property, as they did the Emporia liveryman. The reform goods by Mr. Paul were listed to the officers as follows:

Forty copies—Ten Men of Money Island, ten copies of Stewart on Silver, fifteen copies of The Earthquake, one razor, the aggregate value of $130.

WHAT THE STRIKE COST.

The Commission Questions Different Roads as to Their Loss.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—In the investigation of the Pullman strike by the national commission today, Chauncey Kelsey of the Chicago & Alton road took the witness chair and testified as to the losses sustained by that road during the strike. He declared that the total loss was $238,860.

Then Wm. McFadden of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern road testified that the loss on cars alone to that road was $3,154.

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois reported $21,000 and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy reported $13,000 in destruction to property with other losses that had not been tabulated. Charles E. Webb, chief clerk of the bank at Pullman, testified that Jennie Curtis who claimed she was compelled to pay back rent, had paid the rent voluntarily.

Then Vice President Wicks took the stand. Questioned by Chairman Wright, he said that the cost to the company of building the cars under contract at the time of the strike, was about $1,400,000. The labor would cost about $240,000. The contracts were taken on a basis of a reduction of 20 per cent, and thus under the old prices the labor would cost about $300,000.

Mr. Wicks admitted that on this basis the company had reduced its receipts $52,000 and the employees wages $80,000. This the vice president said looked hardly fair, but he thought it much better than to throw the men entirely out of employment.

In answer to the chairman, Mr. Wicks said that the cut in pay had been made to fit the depression in business and the low selling price of cars and not to stop any encroachment on the profit that was paid to the stockholders.

He said the surplus of $25,000,000 undivided profits, consisted partly of idle cars whose value was constantly deteriorating. The cost of the cars was counted in the surplus, so that there was to some extent a friction in the figures of the surplus.

He said that the world's fair in his opinion, did not do his company any particular good. The company spent $500,000 in building new cars for fair traffic and the traffic was not nearly so large as was really expected. He thought that the fair work had something to do with the cause of the strike. When the rush was over the prices got down to bed rock and the men were dissatisfied.

He did not think that a voluntary division of the profits in prosperous times would be better than the present system. It would not be fair to the stockholders to so divide the profits.

Mr. Wicks said the amount of back rent due the company from the strikers was $100,000. No eviction had been made, and there had been no orders for eviction. Very little effort had been made to collect the rent.

He said the company had contracts with the roads its cars run over (about three-fourths of all the mileage in the country) on the territory covered by the contracts, the Pullman company had a monopoly.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The new tariff bill caused a record-breaking day at the customs house here today. STEALTHY ARABS.

The French Garrison at Timbuctoo Fairly Annihilated.

Troops Made a Sortie and Were Overwhelmed by Tauregs.

THE SECOND DISASTER.

Earlier in the Year French Troops Were Massacred.

Arabs Stole Up and Killed Them in Their Sleep.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Most startling news has reached here from Senegal, West Africa. According to a report received, the French garrison at Timbuctoo after three days desperate fighting with the Tauregs and other hostile tribes which have been investing that city for a long time past, made a sortie. The beleaguering forces were overwhelming in numbers and fell upon the sortie party, fairly annihilating it.

This news created consternation in many circles, as it is the second serious disaster the French have met with in the vicinity of Timbuctoo since that important Soudanese town was occupied by them early in the present year. A French column, commanded by Col. Bannier, arrived at Timbuctoo on January 10 and two days later a detachment of troops with Col. Bannier at its head, accompanied by Commander Hugueny and the entire staff, started out on a reconnoitering expedition, leaving Captain Philippe as senior captain in charge of the post at Timbuctoo.

This French detachment in some manner never fully explained to the public, was surprised asleep in camp at Dought, two hours march north of Goundam and three days march from Timbuctoo.

The Arabs chiefly Tauregs, mounted and on foot, and armed with lances and knives, entered the French camp by several sides during the darkest hours of early morning and overturned the stacked arms in front of the sharpshooters, who, surrounded, were unable to seize their rifles to defend themselves successfully.

The Arabs massacred nearly the entire detachment, consisting of the Fifth and Eleventh companies of Soudanese sharpshooters.

A French officer, Capt. Nigot, though seriously wounded in the head, succeeded in escaping to a platoon of soldiers left some yards behind the main company to guard some captured flocks, and tell the story of the massacre to Lieutenant Bards. It retreated to Timbuctoo, bringing with it a few wounded men, who had escaped the massacre at Dought.

The Tauregs pursued the retreating soldiers and practically invested Timbuctoo, which Captain Philippe made haste to defend pending the arrival of reinforcements. It was stated that at Dought the French lost nine officers, two European sergeants, an interpreter and one sergeant, six corporals and sixty-one native sharpshooters.

For the defense of Timbuctoo, Captain Philippe had 300 rifles and six canon, but this was a very small force with which to hold a town of 12,000 population situated among hot moving sands on the verge of a morass and having a walled enclosure about three miles in circumference.

He and a column commanded by Col. Joffre, was on its way to reinforce the French at Timbuctoo, and having sent messengers to the colonel and communicated with the commander of the French flotilla on the Niger river, the captain made the best disposal possible of his small force, and with the co-operation of the local garrison, held out until the Joffre column arrived. This column was composed of a company and a half of sharpshooters, a squadron of Spahis (splendid African cavalry) thirty auxiliary Spahis and thirty guns.

It also had the horses, mules, drivers, etc., of the first column. It followed the land route by San sandou, Mouzimp, Nanpale, Lere, Soumpa and Goundam, and met with serious opposition during its advance. On January 20 a company of sharpshooters marched on Nialoukne, supported by cavalry and artillery. They were confronted by two kilometers of a swamp which surrounded the village, in front of which were 400 warriors drawn up in battle array.

The warriors charged the French force. The latter in less than fifteen minutes killed over 100 of the Africans. The others took flight and the village was captured without any loss on the part of the Joffre column. Several such engagements took place, and cavalry being repeatedly called in to use but on February 2, the advance flotilla arrived at Goundam and met the advance guard of the Joffre column and on February 12 the latter reached Timbuctoo.

It is in all probability part of the force of Capt. Philippe and Col. Joffre, which according to the advice from Senegal had been cut to pieces by the Arabs. It is believed that the garrison of Timbuctoo has, since the Joffre column arrived there been again reinforced.

RELIC OF CUSTER'S FIGHT.

A Finger Ring Picked Up on the Scene of the Massacre.

CHAMBERLIN, S. D., Aug. 28.—A. J. Williams of Percival, Neb., has found a peculiar ring on the Custer battlefield. Engraved around the band are the names of fifteen of the principal battles of the civil war. Most of the names can easily be made out with a magnifying glass. The owner of the ring, Mr. Williams thinks, probably perished in the massacre on the Little Big Horn.

Mr. Williams has made every effort to discover the whereabouts of any one who would recognize the ring, but without success.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE WIZARD EDISON.

Hard at Work on His New Plan of Crushing Ore.

OGDEN, N. J., Aug. 28.—Wizard Edison of Menlo, and Levallyn Parks has become the wizard of this place. Before he made his appearance here there was nothing but a few scattered farm houses, a station and some holes in the ground. Now everything is changed. A half dozen big buildings filled with machinery are scattered about, freight cars are on the sidings, teams haul heavy loads here and there, and the whole place is full of activity.

Inventor Edison has spent, it is said, nearly $2,000,000 in Ogden. He has erected, abandoned, and torn down buildings and machinery with extraordinary prodigality, and thus far his backers have realized not a single cent from their investment. Just when it seemed his magnetic process of refining ore was a success, and a return for the stockholders was in sight, Mr. Edison became dissatisfied with the ponderous rollers in which the ore was crushed, and one morning he tore them all out. Then he made new and more ponderous rollers after ideas of his own. When these were finished it was found that the belts would not move them and it was necessary to invent a new method to set the great wheels in motion.

Briefly stated, Mr. Edison's process is this: He proposed with his great rollers to grind iron ore into powder and pass the powder longitudinally over a rubber belt and over a series of magnets. The magnets are expected to separate the iron from the rock.

The whole process is to be much cheaper than smelting. There is expected to be millions in it for the company. New Jersey is to be restored to the first place among iron-producing states and another laurel wreath is to be added to the brow of Edison.

"Will he succeed, do you think?" one of the brightest men in his employ was asked. "I think he will," was the answer. No thought of failure clouds the brow of the inventor. He is the same frank, smooth-faced boy-like Edison that he was ten years ago. When he is not busy he visits all the near-by country hotels and tells funny stories. When he is busy he works as of old, 36 and 48 hours at a stretch, without intermission or sleep.

LOVED LOIE FULLER.

But His Wife Stayed by Him and Secured His Pardon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The World this morning announces that Governor Flower has commuted the sentence of eight years for forgery imposed upon Colonel William B. Hayes to eighteen months; that the term expires last Saturday; that Hayes, who is suffering from paresis, is now with his wife in this city. Mrs. Hayes sent a telegram as follows:

"Sorry we cannot vote. We would like to show our gratitude. Miss Fuller would be with us."

The Miss Fuller referred to in the telegram is supposed to be Loie Fuller, the serpentine dancer. Miss Annie M. Keating of Detroit claimed that Colonel Hayes betrayed her under promise of marriage. His wife instead of reproaching Hayes, hoping to win back her husband's love, adopted the child and allowed Mrs. Keating to remain the mistress of her home.

Col. Hayes, it was claimed, gave Miss Keating a note for $2,000. He became infatuated with Miss Fuller and refused to pay the $2,000. The trial for forgery was a famous case in the New York courts for several days last week. Mrs. Hayes stood by him and it was largely through her efforts that Hayes was released from Sing Sing.
